the devil is in the detail

This season's hottest design trends

Our furniture packages are developed in line with the latest design trends and are updated according to seasonal changes. Here's our latest predictions for the best in interior design

To maximise your development's GDV, you'll need to make sure you position your development appropriately for your selected target market. With the buy-to-rent sector predicting strong growth over the next 5-10 years, you'll need to think about durability as well as style and cost. With this in mind we make sure we're at the forefront of the latest design trends to ensure we can help you furnish and finish your development for a successful marketing strategy. We'll not only supply a complete furniture solution for your residential development, but also install, dress for photography and finish your show apartment, ready for marketing.

Our Top 5 design predictions:

Geometric Nothing says contemporary city style than bold geometrics. Inspired by Orla Kiely classics, geometric prints lend a clever retro feel and depth to any interior scheme, whether its curtains, floor coverings, tiles or cushions. Mix with chrome and silver accessories and soft, luxurious textiles to complete the look.

Metallic accents It's not just gold that is seeing a return to popularity. Brass and copper also makes for stunning accents in lighting, wall accessories and finishing touches and mixed with simple accessories like bamboo framed mirrors and glass side tables, the effect is stunning.

Natural beauty While it seems a while before we'll tire of all shades of grey - we're getting hungry for a bold new perspective. Emerald green is a strong choice for a touch of jewelled luxury or bold natural prints on wall coverings such as flocked floral wallpaper or palm prints. Teamed with natural wood furniture or something a little more retro, this trend will have an enduring appeal.

Colour Fast From contrasting to blending, the colour palette remains fundamental to any scheme. Contrasting schemes are still strong however softer combinations are seeing a resurgence in popularity - coral works with grey, stone and pastel shades of green and teal.

Forever fabric If we had our pick it would probably be sumptuous velvet and thankfully it's everywhere. The velvet chesterfield is still holding its own as the must-have piece in any stylish residence. Colour splashes in soft luxurious velvet create stunning statements: choose from deep berry to zesty lemon or burnt orange or for something more enduring, choose from slate grey or classic french navy.

5 ways to 'dress to sell'

To capture your buyer's imagination and create the 'desire to buy', you need to tap into the buyer's lifestyle aspirations.

Our clients secure the majority of their sales off-plan as a result of good marketing. We deliver appointment-ready, dressed apartments for a fast turnaround on your investment. Here, Annette du Toit, Design Manager, shares a few of her top tips for 'dressing to sell'

Choose a few designer or statement pieces to give a sense of designer 'status.' This can range from a designer kitchen accessory to some on-trend artwork. Choose a feature to draw attention to and dress it to complement.

Keeping things simple isn't as easy as it sounds. Its tempting to over-accessorise to make an apartment look welcoming and lived in but less is always more. You're far better choosing, for example, a number of key accessories to give the impression of a finished apartment. A simple trick to make the most of few accessories is to group pieces together - dress the walls with pairs of artwork or place objects in threes to create a better display.

Keep your colours to a minimum. Of course it's great to incorporate some colour contrast with an accent colour as we have in our accessories packages but don't go overboard. Keep your accents to 1 main colour or 2, maximum - don't be tempted to go for any more than that. It will distract the buyer from what you want them to see - a fabulous place to live.

Create a feeling of light and space with clean lines and strategically placed pieces. Large mirrors can be positioned to reflect the best of the natural light and enhance the illusion of space. Keep window coverings simple and not overly heavy to allow maximum inflow of light from the outside.

Personalising is a very difficult balance to achieve. Most buyers don't want to see too many personalised artefacts but they do want to be able to imagine themselves living there. You can cleverly effect a touch of personalisation with a selection of books on a lamp table or the odd framed photo but keep the print inside the frame fairly generic to allow them to imagine their own photographs in the frames.
